

WEBSITE PROPOSAL - AUGUST 2026

Phase 1 is done, Vic.

Your site is live at thevillagersnotes.com. This proposal covers everything we delivered in Phase 1, what you owe for that work, and what Phase 2 adds next.

What we delivered.

Everything below is live right now at thevillagersnotes.com. You own the code outright - no platform, no monthly subscription, no lock-in.

The complete website - 5 pages

Home with your quote front-and-centre. Entries archive with filters, reading time, and scroll progress. Projects page for your novel and play. Book ordering page. All your real content loaded in.

Cloud-powered publishing

Every essay you write from the admin panel goes live instantly on every browser and every device - not just yours. Your writing now lives in the cloud, not on a single computer.

Secure paid article payroll

Readers pay to unlock individual essays via M-Pesa. The full story is stored securely - no reader can access it without a confirmed payment. Works the same on every browser, every phone.

Private author admin

A password-protected page where you can write and publish new entries, edit past ones, update book details, and track your readers - all without touching any code.

Book orders via M-Pesa

Readers fill the form, M-Pesa prompts their phone, they enter their PIN. Delivery details are captured automatically.

Newsletter signup

Readers enter their email to follow your work. Every subscriber is logged to your private list.

Your own domain

thevillagersnotes.com is live with a full SSL certificate - the padlock, the professional address.

Google Analytics

Traffic, readers, where they come from, what they read - all tracked from day one.

Google indexing

Your site is registered with Google Search Console and the sitemap submitted. Google is already crawling your pages.

Social sharing previews

When someone shares any page on WhatsApp or X, it shows your title, your excerpt, and your book cover - not a blank link.

Security hardening

Industry-standard headers are in place. Your paid content cannot be accessed by bypassing the payment - verified on the server before anything is revealed.

What we build next.

Phase 1 gave you the full site. Phase 2 makes the business side run itself - so you spend your time writing, not managing.

Newsletter that actually sends

Right now subscribers are captured but the emails go nowhere. We wire up a proper delivery system so you can email your readers when a new essay drops - from a real email address, not a form tool.

Paid M-Pesa - your Till, not ours

The M-Pesa payments on your site currently go through our test account. We migrate this to your own Safaricom Till or Paybill number so every shilling lands directly in your account.

Subscriber and order records saved permanently

Right now if someone clears a browser, records can disappear. We move these to the same secure cloud database your articles use - permanent, exportable, yours forever.

Proper admin login

The current admin uses a shared password. We replace it with a proper login - your email and a password you set yourself - so only you can get in, from any device, at any time.

Final security pass

A last database check to make sure no one can access your paid content by going around the payment. Belt and suspenders.
